

Starting off this month is a stunning array from the collection of Lina Huang – all on this page are Lina's except the last bloom

Lc. Burana Beauty

Zgba. Dragon Kitten 'Patches'

Dendrobium Impact

Paph. venustum 'Super Star' x Miao Hua-1'

You may have noticed at meetings & previous VBs, Lina grows slipper orchids particularly well, she has a number of spectacular specimens.

The common name for Paph. venustum is The Charming Paphiopedilum.

The name venustum is derived from the veins in the labellum.

Found in Assam India, Northeastern Bangladesh, the Eastern Himalayas, Bhutan, Nepal and Yunnan China at elevations of 1000 to 1500 meters, the habitat of Paph. venustum lies in some of the wettest places on earth. It grows as a medium sized, cool growing, shade loving terrestrial in a variety of habitats, at the base of cliffs in humus or in the dense undergrowth of bamboo thickets or the jungle, often near streams, as well as in the crotch of trees with leaf detritus. Flower size to 9cm.

<http://slipperorchids.info/paphdatasheets/>

Cym. Unknown

Holc. kimballianum x V. sanderiana

Gomesa Trinket – T & P
Only one on this page not from Lina

Cattleya Flava-Psyche
(C. crispata x Psyche)

Diplocaulobium regale

Maxillaria variabilis *FS 1-1.5cm

Dendrobium tetragonum
var. giganteum

Dendrochilum niveum

Prosthechea cochleata

← Pleurothallis
prolaticollaris
*FS 6mm

→
Scaphyglottis
violacea
*FS 2.5mm

Dendrobium Wayne Turville

Dendrobium Unknown

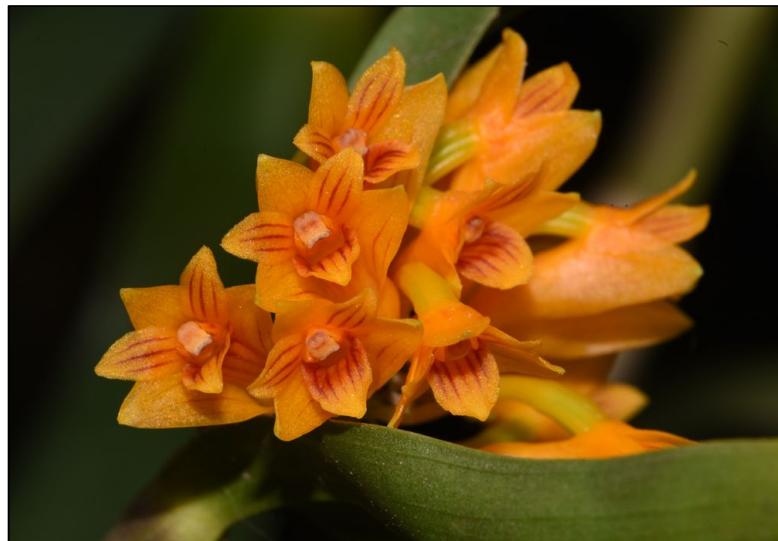

*FS = Flower size based on <http://www.orchidspecies.com/>

Stenorrhynchos speciosum x sib.
Peter & Jane D'Olier

Dendrochilum wenzelii – Peter & Jane D'Olier *FS 1cm

↑ Dendrobium bullenianum – Peter & Jane D'Olier

With a *FS of 1.9cm this hot to warm growing epiphytic species, originates in the evergreen lowland forests of the Philippines and Vietnam at elevations up to 1000 meters. Producing clusters of these dainty little bright orange flowers with striking red lines all along the pseudobulbs which, according to Wikipedia can be one meter long & 1.5cm thick. The link below shows what a sight it is in nature. It is named in honour of Mr. Bullen, an orchid cultivator with Low & Co.'s nursery, who was the first in Britain to get this species to flower in cultivation.

<http://www.orchidspecies.com/> https://www.flickr.com/photos/likas_halamanan/3606061421/in/photostream/

Restrepia trichoglossa
Peter & Jane D'Olier *FS 3cm

Odont. Tiger Hambuhren T & P
What a glorious explosion of colour... see the hanging pots in the background

Pleurothallis palliolata *FS 1.5cm

Epi. polybulbon

Den. teretifolium. There are an array of common names for this cascading beauty: Terete-Leaved Dockrillia, Bridal Veil Orchid, Thin Pencil Orchid, Rats Tail Orchid, Clematis Orchid, The Northern Pencil & The Yellow Pencil Orchid.

They are found in Qld. and NSW at elevations of 5 to 800 meters, in mangroves and rainforests, along stream banks, rivers, lakes or swamps. It has a flower size of 2.5 to 4 cm and the multiple, many branched clusters of flowers float down in a magnificent white cloud of blooms.

They are cool to hot growing epiphytes or occasionally lithophytes. They bloom from winter through to the end of spring. The fragrance has been described as like liquorice. They like high light and regular watering while in the growing phase and a drier winter rest with no fertiliser. Ref: <http://www.orchidspecies.com/>

Den. Avril's Gold

Lc. Tangerine Dream x C. intermedia

Onc. zappii

Cattleya coccinea - T & P

(Lc. Coronet x Lc. Trick or Treat) x Pot. Free Spirit - T & P

Zygopetalum Perrenoudii (hybrid)
Dennys & Janine Angove

Zgm. Fog Ride Meadows x Roslyn
Jessie Koh

Brydie's dining room Phallies
Jim & Cynthia Brydie

Pterostylis curta - Jenny Richardson
...now stick out your tongue & say ahhh

Pterostylis curta
Jessie Koh

Den. Jonathan's Glory x 'Hot lips'
Jessie Koh

Den. speciosum Hilda Poxon
Jessie Koh

Den. Aussie Parade 'Perfection' x
Hilda Poxon 'Measles' - Jessie Koh

Cym. Hazel Dawn 'Bengal'
Jenny Richardson

← Cycnoder Jumbo Coma x Bathiorum

My goodness, what a phenomenal flower!

Gowan said this is the first flowering of this gorgeous orchid – how exciting must it have been to see this creation reveal the beauty within. My initial impression was a cross between a butterfly & an orchid – an analogy that may only make sense if you grew up with a brother with a fascination for creatures, who showed me as he unfurled a butterfly's tongue – well yes it's proboscis, but when you are five years old it's a tongue. As I continued to look, an image of a frilled neck lizard came to mind can you see him running across the savanna woodlands of northern Australia? What impressive anatomy this beauty has. Similar to the Fulcher's Fredclarkeara featured last month, *Cycnoder is an artificial genus, this time a two way cross produced by breeding Cycnoches (found across most of tropical America) with Mormodes (found in Mexico to Bolivia & Brazil). Typically, Cycnoder produce trigger-less flowers that last longer than pure Catasetums. Cycnoder retain the requirement of a dry rest period after flowering.

*Ref: <https://catasetinaecanada.weebly.com/cycnoder-cyed.html>

Cycnoches Opalina (first flowering)

Den. Roongkamol Vejvarut

Dendrochilum yuccifolium

Psychopsis Mendenhall 'Hildos'

Wilsonara Hilda Plumtree

Dendrobium jenkinsii

A selection of beauties from John O'Ryan – with some interesting snippets of the plant's history from John

← Coelogyne tomentosa

I was given a division by a customer a few years ago. This is it's first bloom for me in all that time. I am very happy with it as it also has 6 new growths currently.

Den. Black & Green →

'Black Velvet' x Jesmond Sparkler 'Greg Hall'
Purchased from AON in 2018 as a seedling. This is it's second season of blooming. The flowers are large at roughly 6-7cm and heavy. Especially after the rain. It only has 5 canes but hoping for good growth in the warm months.

↓ Den. Victorian Splendour

I sent this in last month but it only had a few buds open. It has also put on a huge show this year and resembles a bouquet there are that many flowers on it. It has a great perfume to go with it. ↓

← Den. Cobber 'What The' x Australian Obsession 'Purple Paddle Pop'.

Purchased around the same time from AON in an ebay auction. It is it's second season of blooming also and this year it has put on a real show. Nearly all the flowers are opened but it's still a week away from its best I feel. Nearly every cane has at least 1x spike but many have 3 spikes so next year I may not be so lucky.

← Blc. Ida Elizabeth 'Enchanting'

I love the shape of this Cattleya with it's petals that look like big ears and slender sepals. I purchased this from the Orchid Place at Heathcote in 2017. It was one of my first orchids in my collection. Currently it has 3 flowers and 2 buds about to open. It blooms 2-3 times a year. The flowers are about the size of my hand so pretty big as most Catts are. It also has a lovely gentle fragrance. I just love white based cattleyas!!! I will divide this plant this year as it's getting a bit big. I might need to pot it into bin if it keeps going... Ha ha.

← Den. Newbold Ty Flare (Tyabb 'Kings Park' x Victorian Flare 'Solid Violet Lip')

Purchased from Orchids On Newbold online in February this year so it just makes the 6 month cut off. Obviously this is its first bloom for me and I believe it's the first bloom ever so pretty happy to have such a beautiful little flower. There are only 3 flowers on it and they have been open for a few days so I'm still waiting to see the flower longevity.

Cym. Unknown – Jessie Koh
Only bloom on page not from John

Rlc. Kesthin's Esther
Gloria & Allan Cushway

Paph. Fieldfare x Winston Churchill
Gloria & Allan Cushway

Rth. Burdekin Nugget 'Bette'
Gloria & Allan Cushway

Blc. Sylvia Fry 'Supreme'
Gloria & Allan Cushway

Cattleya Mem. Isabel Keenan
Gloria & Allan Cushway

C. Mini Purple 'Jessica' x C. Mango Spice 'Orange Orb' - Jessie Koh

← Cym. Hiroshima
Sweet Eyes 'Pink
Temptation'
Heather Sullivan

→
Cymbidium Unknown
Heather Sullivan

These gorgeous blooms are Heather's first entries to Virtual Benchin & what a pretty pair to start with.
Beautifully grown Heather

Well done

Cym. Unknown – Jenny Richardson

Cym. Unknown – Jessie Koh

Cym. Unknown – Jenny Richardson